At first glance, Hinkson's might seem like a small, ordinary office supply store, but they are able to provide an expansive selection with competitive prices while also providing personal service. They are small enough to know the needs of their customers while large enough to offer the best selection.

Andrew Mangone, who has spent his entire professional career at Hinkson's, co-owns the store with John Roberto. The store has been open since 1930, and John's father bought it from Harold Hinkson in 1960. Hinkson's is open every day of the week and customers can have a 1/2 hour of free parking in the garage next door.

Hinkson's banks with The Bank of Princeton because like them, The Bank of Princeton offers a full range of services while providing personal attention.
